

A close-up photograph of a person wearing orange gloves and a blue shirt, working on a large industrial valve. The person is using a long metal rod to adjust or repair the valve mechanism. The valve is a complex, grey metal structure with various bolts and fittings. The word "VALVES" is overlaid in large, white, bold, sans-serif capital letters on the left side of the image.

VALVES

In the fast-paced world of industrial operations, where every moment counts, inefficiencies and unplanned downtime are not an option. Score is on your side, to be the strategic partner that is just as invested in your success as you are.

At Score, we more than understand the intricacies and significance of effective valve management upon your operation. We actively engineer solutions that ensure your valve support needs are met now and in perpetuity. Whether its reducing emissions, carrying out valve repair and refurbishment, conducting onsite surveys, or ensuring seamless automation and controls, with Score you have global valve expertise within your team.

Through valve diagnostics, valve supply and overhaul, valve life management, and automation and control services to streamline your operational decision making, Score is your hands-on valve partner.

By entrusting your valve needs to us, you will no longer need to deal with multiple contractors: if it's valve-related, speak to Score. As a result, you'll be empowered to focus your attentions elsewhere, safe in the knowledge that your holistic valve management partner is delivering predictability, efficiencies and dependable servicing solutions as well as advisory consultation that will increase asset lifecycles, decrease downtime and reduce the risk of failures. At Score, we have a deep understanding of all valve failure modes and with our streamlined inventory management system, we are able to bring the right solution to you and your operation at pace with your long-term goals in mind. This is not just about fixing problems; it is about preventing them altogether.

With over 40 years of industry expertise, Score's unwavering commitment to operational excellence persists. Our holistic approach, that is founded in our deep-rooted understanding of valve management in the context of ever-changing and challenged global industries, makes us the preferred valve partner for those seeking excellence in operation. Above all, we're about delivering sustainability: ensuring that your operation not only thrives today but endures for generations to come. Embrace the future with confidence, knowing that Score has your holistic valve needs handled. Always.